National Hotel In Havana Shelled By Government

AMERICAN IS KILLED WHEN SHOTS FIRED

Several Direct Hits Made By Artillerymen; Huge Holes in Hotel Appear

GUNBOAT IN PLACE

U. S. Citizen Loses Life as He Watches Battle From An Adjoining Building

BULLETIN
HAVANA, Oct. 2.—(UP)—The entire group of rebel officers embattled in the National hotel surrendered this afternoon after an intermittent bombardment by government forces which began at 6 a. m. Official announcement of the surrender was made by the Cuban chief of staff.

BULLETIN
HAVANA, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Thirty of the rebellious army officers who fortified themselves within the National Hotel and for more than six hours withstood a terrific machine gun and artillery bombardment were killed, the secretary of the interior estimated today.

The war department previously had admitted that more than 20 of the attacking soldiers were killed, and estimates of wounded ran as high as 100, including many civilian spectators, caught in the line of cross-fire.

HAVANA, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Government artillery unlimbered against the National hotel at 11 a. m. today, and sent several shells screaming into the building for direct hits.

From the roof of the Presidente hotel, the correspondent saw a number of gaping holes appear, and from a fifth story window an object dropped—evidently the body of a defending officer.

The Cuban gunboat Patria, lying off shore, was maneuvering into position, but up to 11 a. m. had not joined in the bombardment.

An American citizen was killed in the battle between enlisted men and "imprisoned" officers at the National hotel.

The victim was R. L. Lotspitch, assistant manager of the Havana branch of Swift and company. He was killed while leaning over a terrace in the Lopez Serrano building.

Exchange Fire
Fighting between the rebellious officers and the surrounding troops was intensified as the hours passed, and there were constant exchanges of machine gun and rifle fire, endangering the entire zone in the vicinity of the famous hotel. Americans fled the district.

Shots, ricocheting from nearby buildings endangered large groups of spectators, and a cordon of cavalry had been placed around the fighting zone. Hundreds of men and women, nevertheless, climbed to roof tops and galleries to watch the battle.

PRIZE FIGHTER REDUCTION IN LOSSES FOOT IN INTEREST HELD AUTO ACCIDENT TO BE ILLEGAL

Condition of Young Stribling is Reported Better This Morning

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2.—(UP)—W. L. ("Young") Stribling showed improvement today and hospital authorities reported his general condition "better." He spent a fairly good night, it was said, and bleeding which followed the loss of a foot and other injuries in a motorcycle-automobile crash Sunday had stopped.

The heavyweight's left foot was cut off by the fender of an automobile that sideswiped the motorcycle upon which he was riding. His entire left leg was crushed and his pelvic bone was shattered. Stribling started winning ring fame as a Georgia high school boy of 16. He was nearly 29 years old when yesterday's accident ended his career. He reached his peak two years ago when he fought the then world's heavyweight champion, Max Baer, and lost in the 15th round on a technical knockout.

Stribling's splendid physical condition and quick first aid by a trained nurse who happened to be passing by the scene of the wreck are believed to have saved his life.

Stribling was returning from the Idle Hour golf club. An automobile driven by R. V. Johnson swerved to avoid hitting another machine and sideswiped Stribling's motorcycle.

20,000 TRUCKMEN IN N. Y. WALK OUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Twenty thousand truckmen, most of them concerned in movement of the city's food supply, went on strike today and a few hours later union leaders claimed that the huge borough of Brooklyn had been completely cut off from its sources of food.

"Brooklyn is completely tied up with no flour moving," William Snyder, an official of the teamsters' union announced.

Millions of Dollars Affected by Ruling of L. A. Municipal Judge

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Millions of dollars in building and loan deposits were affected today by a ruling of Municipal Judge Lucius P. Green, invalidating a recent state legislative act reducing interest payments from 6 to 4 per cent.

Judge Green issued the ruling in supporting S. Halper's claim against the Pacific States Savings and Loan company. He awarded Halper judgment of $1.87 as the difference between the interest paid at 4 per cent and that due under the 6 per cent stipulated in the contract.

Judge Green based his ruling upon the premise that the legislative act violates state and national constitutions by abrogating the sanctity of a contract and confiscating property without due process of law.

Defense attorneys, who had sought dismissal of the suit on ground the legislature acted within its police powers in passing the measure, are expected to appeal the decision.

MARLENE SAYS SHE AND MAE FRIENDS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Marlene Dietrich and Mae West are pals, as close as two peas in a pod.

Miss Dietrich thus dismissed statements attributed by New York reporters that she "had never heard of Mae West." The purported statement was quoted upon her return from abroad. The German actress declared upon arriving home that she and Mae not only knew one another but were fast friends as well.

She gave newspapermen and photographers the slip by leaving the train at San Bernardino and motoring to her home in Beverly Hills. With her were her daughter, Maria, 7, and a trunk full of new clothes, purchased in Europe.

ONE DEAD AND SIX INJURED IN EARTHQUAKE LAST NIGHT

Damage Not Great; Close L. A. Schools

Thousands Leave Hotels in Los Angeles and Walk Streets for Hours

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(UP)—One woman died of a heart attack, six persons were injured and minor damage done throughout metropolitan Los Angeles today as the result of a sharp earthquake which rocked Southern California at 1:10 a. m. Mrs. Sophia Kanapow, 73, died a few minutes after the quake of a heart attack, which physicians said was induced by fright.

Injuries were confined to cuts, bruises and lacerations resulting from breaking glass and falling objects in homes.

Plate glass was broken in a number of downtown stores. Windows and dishes were broken in residences. Masonry fell from the front of the condemned Central police station, demolishing an automobile and slightly injuring an unidentified woman. The building was unoccupied. It was ordered vacated after the severe quake of March 10.

The injured: Mrs. Mary Benedict, 51, Los Angeles, struck by a medicine cabinet shaken from the bathroom wall.

Miss Charlotte Benedict, 28, Los Angeles, feet cut when she ran through glass from shattered windows in her home.

Lewis Montay, 26, Los Angeles, leaped from a window and received bruises, and cuts from a broken window.

Miss Helen Apodac, 23, Los Angeles, fainted from fright.

Mrs. Pat Kalish, 22, San Pedro, lacerations received when she thrust her arm through a window.

An unidentified woman slightly injured by falling masonry at condemned Central police station.

The Carnegie Institute's seismological laboratory at Pasadena placed the epicenter of the quake at a distance of "25 miles or more" southwesterly from the instruments.

This would place the disturbance along the Inglewood fault between Los Angeles and the bay district from Santa Monica to Long Beach.

The Institute timed the shock at 1:10:26 a. m. PST, and described it as "strong enough to cause minor damage only."

Close Schools
Long Beach, Santa Monica, Pasadena, Beverly Hills, Huntington Park, Santa Ana and other outlying cities reported virtually no damage. The shock was local in effect. San Diego on the south did not feel the tremor. It was felt only slightly in Santa Barbara on the north.

PRESIDENT OF A. F. L. OPPOSED TO INFLATION

Complete Unionization of America's Workers Urged at Convention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Complete unionization of America's workers and an active opposition to monetary inflation were demanded by President William Green in a vigorous speech today at the opening session of the 53rd annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The federation president made one of the most forceful addresses of his career. He pleaded for a militant labor outlook and declared that success of the national industrial recovery act depended upon adoption of a uniform 30 hour week and higher wages throughout the industry.

Green said that "nothing is going to stop" American workers from rallying under the banner of the federation to take advantage of the "new deal." He paid tribute to the patience and patriotism of the American worker and said this would continue until success had been reached.

"Millions have waited patiently for the turn of the tide," he said. "These workers will not now be denied the realization of that better day and better time."

Regarding inflation, Green said: "We know that when the dollar is cheapened commodity prices rise but wages remain the same. In my judgment labor will stand unflinchingly against inflation until labor is assured that it will get enough more cheap dollars to compensate for the increased prices."

Green criticized the wage and hour provisions of some of the major NRA codes and said they would have to be revised toward a six-hour day and five-day week, and to include higher minimum wages.

Green spoke before more than 500 delegates in the Gold and Crystal ballroom on the top floor of the Willard hotel. He spoke from notes without a prepared text in keeping with the tradition that federation presidents talk informally to convention delegates.

Green said that naturally mistakes would be made in carrying out emergency legislation such as the NIRA.

"We find it necessary," he said, "to call upon administrators of the recovery act to bring about revision in major codes so that labor truly and surely may enjoy benefits of the new deal."

Declaring that tangible benefits already had resulted from the act, Green said:

"It is mighty refreshing to observe that we have passed from the stage of innocuous quietude and inaction to a stage of action, action and action all the time!"

As benefits from the act, Green listed:

1. Two million eight hundred thousand workers re-employed.

2. A 25 per cent increase in total buying power.

3. Practical abolition of child labor.

GRIM SEARCH FOR LEPER INSTITUTED

STOCKTON, Calif., Oct. 2.—(UP)—A grim search for Leornzo Ugale, 24, who was to have been transferred to a leper colony in Louisiana, was made by officers today.

Ugale, Filipino, said to have shown plainly effects of the dread disease, escaped from the San Joaquin county hospital Sunday. He escaped Saturday, but was recaptured.

It was believed he might try to reach the home of a friend in Rio Vista.

MINERS REFUSE TO RETURN TO WORK IN PITS

Soft Coal Workers Insist NRA Board Accord Them All Their Demands

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 2.—(UP)—Labor troubles harassed the soft coal industry today as the national recovery code of fair wages and competition, formulated after weeks of bitter haggling, became effective.

Thousands of striking miners refused to return to the pits until complete compliance had been accorded their demands. They were mostly miners in "captive" mines (mines owned by steel mills that take their entire output). The operators had agreed to all provisions of the code, but failed to put their agreement in writing with union officials.

Fayette county, whose principal industry is coal and coke, was the center of labor troubles.

The attitude of miners in the other nine counties affected by the already two-week-old strike was problematical. Some miners in other counties voted Saturday to end the strike.

But the Fayette captive mines, including those of the H. C. Frick coke company, were shut tight by picket lines.

State police scattered patrols through the Fayette fields. They expected pickets to appear at the score of mines there in greater numbers than ever during the two strikes of this summer.

DENIES HOOVER TO BE STANFORD PREXY

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 2.—(UP)—Dr. Ray Lynum Wilbur, denied vehemently today a report originating with a New York columnist that former President Herbert Hoover would succeed him as president of Leland Stanford university here.

"There is absolutely nothing in it," Dr. Wilbur told the United Press.

Dr. Wilbur was secretary of the interior in the Hoover cabinet and counts the ex-president as a neighbor and personal friend of years standing.

"I have no intention of resigning and I can assure you that Mr. Hoover has no designs on my position," President Wilbur said, laughing.

Paul Sexton, secretary to Mr. Hoover, said he was certain the report was erroneous.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM DIES IN S. A. HOSPITAL

ROY SHADAKER, 53, Long Beach, died yesterday from injuries received September 12 in Stanton and six persons were injured as the traffic toll from accidents in Orange county over the weekend. The death of Shadaker brought the total for the year to 37.

Commander Frank Loftin of the navy department revealed the project in a lecture to members of the junket.

The plan calls for construction of 375 ships. The navy would be brought to treaty strength by 1939, then kept at treaty strength by replacement of over-age vessels.

Commander Loftin said the navy department intended to submit the program to congress in January.

MEN INJURED IN SERVICE TO GET HELP

President Strikes Straight From Shoulder in Talk to Legion Convention APPEALS FOR SUPPORT

Says Non-combatant Veteran Must Take Chances With Other Citizens

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 2.—(UP)—The non-combatant war veteran must take his chances with other citizens in earning a living, President Roosevelt said today in a straight-from-the-shoulder speech carrying his economy fight before 30,000 members of the American Legion.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke boldly in his crucial address before the Legion convention which had potentialities of winning the veterans wholeheartedly or arousing revolt against the president's drastic compensation cuts. He was cheered vociferously through his address.

He laid down three principles in dealing with the veterans and declared that his policy of financial retrenchment was imperative if the country is to thrive. His principles were:

1.—Governmental responsibility for those who suffered injury or disease in the war.

2.—No special class of beneficiaries, over and above all other citizens.

3.—Federal aid for non-connected service disability cases but only when all other agencies fail.

"The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he (the veteran) can demand and receive from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives," the president declared. "It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country, performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive

LINDBERGH REFUSES TO GIVE BROADCAST

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh declined a request from General Johnson, recovery administrator, to broadcast a speech from Europe appealing for support of the NRA program, he told the United Press today.

Johnson cabled Lindbergh during the aviator's visit to Moscow, and Lindbergh replied from there. Explaining his refusal, Lindbergh said he was sympathetic but as the campaign started after he left the United States for his long flying tour, it would be difficult in fact impossible to make a speech on it.

Lindbergh arrived yesterday from Reval, Estonia, after a rough flight in which he and Mrs. Lindbergh were forced once to turn back and circle a fog bank.

Complaints Filed With County NRA Compliance Board

CALL MEETING TO CONSIDER DIFFICULTIES

Oil workers in Orange county are taking their labor difficulties to NRA compliance boards in the county. It was learned today, in an effort to adjust wages and hours to conform with NRA details and to straighten out various matters.

A number of complaints regarding wages paid and hours worked by workers in Orange county oil fields have been filed with the Orange county compliance board, headed by County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson, and these will be considered at an early meeting of the board, he said today.

The county board will meet regularly on dates to be decided on late this week, Adkinson announced, because enough complaints are coming in to justify regular meetings. The county board handles only those complaints which come from areas not served by chambers of commerce, which organized local compliance boards, and cases not able to be adjusted by the local board.

Adkinson said today that many employees apparently are afraid to complain of any violations of the NRA and president's agreement for fear of losing their jobs. He pointed out that all complaints are secret and are available to no one but members of the compliance board.

Adkinson said that employers were co-operating in an excellent spirit and that so far, all cases have been settled in a friendly manner.

The Santa Ana compliance board will meet tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in the chamber of commerce office to consider six complaints which have been filed.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS LOS ANGELES

NEA photo shows large chunks of masonry which were shaken down from the old Central police station on First street, just west of Broadway, in the Los Angeles earthquake this morning. The building, unoccupied, was condemned as unsafe about a year ago.

Photo below shows automobile which was struck by a falling cornice at Sixth and Coronado street in Los Angeles early this morning when one of the most severe earth tremors in recent months shook the Southland. One person died and six were injured in Los Angeles.

ONE DIES AND SIX ARE HURT IN EARTHQUAKE

An early check revealed no damage, but to safeguard the children fully the schools were closed until engineers could make a thorough survey.

It was expected the schools would open tomorrow, but the board reserved decision until it has a complete report from a special board of architects.

The long lines department of the Southern California Telephone company reported that its entire system "appeared to be intact," although the quake was reported by test rooms from Santa Barbara on the north to San Diego on the south, and from San Bernardino to the beach towns.

The company was calling the roll of all its offices in the affected area, but announced that apparently no town within the scope of its services had sustained major damage.

United Press circuits up and down California continued to operate without interruption. The news service was at the hour of the quake operating approximately 1000 miles of leased wires within the state.

Buildings Damaged
Scores of buildings in Los Angeles were damaged. The cornice of one four-story apartment house collapsed, demolishing a parked automobile. The machine was empty.

The shock loosened the brakes of a Pacific Electric railway car, loaded with rock, causing it to roll over the end of an embankment and overturn.

Thousands of persons, in night dresses and hastily donned overcoats, strolled the sidewalks and sat on lawns and curbs. Automobiles were brought from garages, and many prepared to spend the night in their cars, prepared to leave if a second shock of more severity was felt. The night was calm and warm, with a full moon thinly obscured by haze.

Hotel lobbies were crowded with persons who rushed from their beds and prepared to spend the balance of the night near street-level exits.

Plaster fell throughout the fashionable Ambassador, and other hostilities sustained similar minor damage.

Telephone service throughout the city was temporarily disrupted. A flood of emergency calls added to delay and confusion when, in a matter of minutes, service was resumed.

Today's shock came in a single, sustained rolling motion. The fact that the quake was a "single" was unusual. Earthquakes of its comparative severity generally come in a quick series.

No Damage Done In Orange County

Check of the county today failed to disclose any earthquake damage of consequence. According to reports, a few dishes were broken in Fullerton.

Several employees of the La Habra Heights Mutual Water company were called to duty early this morning to check any possible damage. The entire system escaped damage. It was reported.

Most residents were awakened by the shock which was described as of a rolling nature and of several seconds duration.

Martin Murray, amateur scientist who maintains a laboratory at Wintersburg, reported today that his seismograph recorded the shock at 1:09 a. m. of 20 seconds duration and as traveling in a southerly and westerly direction. He said he believed it may have originated in the Palos Verde hills.

WILL ROGERS says:

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 2.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Roscoe Turner who just broke the west-east record already holding the east-west was just out. Men like Turner, Hawkes, Doolittle, Post, Matton and others who have to promote the money, risk their lives then do things that today are considered a stunt, but tomorrow are an everyday affair. We used to think Japanese couldn't fly but I saw a weekly where it looked like there was millions doing it. Lindbergh says Russia has a plane for every beard. So we got to speed up. Railroads, air lines, kidnapping jury convictions and everything, whatever is going to happen to us let it happen quick, and get it over with.

Police Start Hunt For Missing Girl

Police have been asked to make a search for Miss Marion Juanita Helmer, 15, who was last seen last Sunday morning at her home in the Palace hotel, Fourth and French streets.

The school girl is believed by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Helmer, to have gone to Los Angeles or Phoenix but knows no reason why her daughter should leave Santa Ana. The girl told friends at the hotel about 10 a. m. Sunday that she was going down to the high school. When last seen, she was wearing a brown skirt, orange flowered waist, black and white shoes and no hat. She is described as having dark hair, weighing 120 pounds and being 5 feet 5 inches tall.

SPECIAL CLASS LAWS ATTACKED BY PRESIDENT

a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service had terminated, and not connected with that service.

Thanks Legion

In thanking the Legion for its loyalty and service he appealed for unity and the elimination of sectionalism and class.

"If the spirit of sectionalism is allowed to grow strong, or to prevail, it means the end of national unity and of patriotism," he said.

"You and I are aware of the simple fact that as every day passes, the people of this country are less and less willing to tolerate benefits for any one group of citizens which must be paid for by others.

"You have been willing to fight for the benefits of American life. You have been willing to live for American unity. You have understood that this is the very foundation of the Americanism for which you stand, in which you believe, and to which you and I swore allegiance when we became American Legionnaires."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to his economy program in citing the realities of the depression and observed that "millions were out of work, the banks were closed, the credit of the government itself was threatened."

He said, "Obviously, the first objective was to get the engine running again. It is true," he added, "we succeeded in reopening the great majority of banks, but this would not have been possible if at the same time we had not been able to restore the credit of the government."

National Credit
"In speaking of national credit we are again dealing with a real thing, not a theory in books. There is such a thing as national credit. It depends on national unity, without it the government cannot get the money to give. You and I depend upon it, and in a right sense your welfare and mine rests upon it."

"That is not just an academic proposition. Industry cannot be restored, people cannot be put back to work, banks cannot be kept open, human suffering cannot be cared for, if the government itself is bankrupt. We realize now that the great human values, not for you alone but for all American citizens, rest upon the unimpaired credit of the United States."

"It was because of this that we undertook to take the national treasury out of the red and put it back into the black. And in the doing we laid down two principles—to you and to veterans of other wars."

The first, Mr. Roosevelt continued, was that the government had a direct responsibility for the men who fought and suffered injury or disease.

No Special Class
The second was that "no person because he wore a uniform must thereafter be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all other citizens."

"It does mean, however," Mr. Roosevelt went on, "that those who were injured in or as a result of their service, are entitled to receive adequate and generous compensation. It does mean that generous care shall be extended to the dependents of those who died in or as a result of their service."

"To carry out these principles, the people of this country can and will pay in taxes the sums which it is necessary to raise. To carry out these principles will not bankrupt your government nor throw its bookkeeping into the red."

Recalling that mistakes, many of them, were made in the last 15 years of administering veteran relief, the president pointed out also that "I personally know that mistakes in individual cases and inequalities affecting various groups have occurred in the past six months."

"But at the same time," he said, "there stands out the fact that many of these mistakes have been rectified and that we have the definite purpose of doing justice not only to the mass, but in so far as possible, to every individual as well."

Promises Aid
He asserted that "Furthermore, it is my hope that in so far as justice concerns those whose disabilities are, as a matter of fact, of war service origin, the government will be able to extend even more generous care than is now provided under existing regulations. It is to these men that our obligation exists."

The president then went on to explain that "to these broad principles the time has come, I believe, for us to add a third."

"There are many veterans," he pointed out, "of our wars to whom disability and sickness unconnected with war causes has come. To them the federal government owes the application of the same rule under which it has laid down for the relief of other cases of involuntary want or destitution."

He made it clear, however, that these cases would first be referred to the community and states for aid. Should those agencies, after reasonable effort, fail, then the federal government would step in, but not until that time.

Turning away from the direct problem of veteran relief and administration, the president appealed for the support of the former service men in the efforts for national recovery.

"Consistent Gain"
"The realization of our national program cannot be attained in six months," he said. "Re-employment has proceeded only a part of the way. From week to week there will be ups and downs, but the net result is a consistent gain. The freeing of credit has been stopped and the ice is definitely melting. Farm income has been increased; it must be further increased."

"Industry has picked up but an increased purchasing power must stimulate further."

"Your task and mine are similar. Each one of us must play an individual part in our own field in dealing with these many problems, but at the same time we must realize that the individual part belongs to a closely related whole—the national unity of purpose and of action."

"I ask your further and even greater efforts in our program of national recovery. You who wore the uniform, you who served, you who took the oath of allegiance to the American Legion, you who support the ideals of American citizenship, I have called to the colors again. As your commander-in-chief and your comrade, I am confident that you will respond."

STATE OFFICER BADLY HURT IN BRIDGE CRASH

Hurled through a heavy highway fence while traveling nearly 80 miles an hour, California Highway Patrolman Lloyd Groover was seriously injured late Saturday morning on the coast highway near the Galvan bridge north of San Juan Capistrano.

Groover suffered a dislocated hip and cuts and bruises when thrown from his motorcycle. He was removed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital Saturday afternoon and was reported feeling easier today. It is expected that he will be confined several weeks.

The officer was pursuing a motorist who was racing a train on the tracks which paralleled the highway. Groover said he had reached a speed of 78 miles an hour when a large spike stuck in the front tire of the motorcycle and threw it out of control. Approaching the curve on the bridge, Groover was unable to turn and crashed through the highway barricade of heavy timbers. His motorcycle was badly damaged and eye-witnesses were astonished that he was not more seriously injured.

SHIP MURDER SUSPECT LEAVES COUNTY BASTILE

With Federal officials announcing that they would make every effort to secure a death penalty for James John Walsh, 23-year-old ex-convict, on the charge of murder on a gambling ship, the youth was taken from the Orange county jail today to make his plea in Los Angeles.

He appeared before United States District Judge Hollister today on the charge of killing his Leavenworth prison chum, Buell V. Dawson, the night of September 20 while they were guests on the barge Johanna Smith II.

Assistant United States Attorney Ernest R. Uttley says he will seek the death penalty for Walsh. Under the Federal penal code the death penalty is by hanging in a prison designated by the Attorney General. The death penalty has never been imposed in this Federal jurisdiction, Uttley said.

Walsh, in company with three other federal prisoners and maintaining the "tough" attitude he has assumed since his capture, was taken from the jail here by United States Deputy Marshal Frank Besser for transfer to Los Angeles.

DENIES GUILT IN U. S. COURT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(UP)—A plea of not guilty to a charge of murdering Buell Dawson on the high seas was entered today by James J. Walsh, 23 year old ex-convict.

Federal Judge Harry A. Hollister heard Walsh deny the accusation he shot his former cell mate aboard the gambling ship Johanna Smith on Sept. 21.

His trial was set for October 17. Attorneys indicated they would base the defense on grounds of insanity.

Over 700,000 acres of United States public lands have been added to the Navajo Indian reservation in Utah to settle a 20-year controversy.

"A FAITH THAT DOES NOT SAVE" SERMON TOPIC

Speaking last evening on the subject: "A Faith That Does Not Save," Rev. Frank E. Lindgren, pastor of Calvary church, meeting in the Ebell Club auditorium said: "We have what might appear to be a strange situation recorded in the second chapter of the gospel of John. Many, it is stated, believed in his name when they saw the miracles which he did."

"That should be expected. What else could sound thinking people do? Supernatural things must have a supernatural source. But the unexpected thing related has to do with the response to that situation on the part of Jesus. He did not believe in them. They had faith but Jesus had no faith in their faith."

"It was a reasonable faith based on evidence and scientific demonstration. Unusual things had been done and they were forced to admit an unusual person was in their midst. In fact they 'believed in his name,' which admitted deity. But Jesus did not believe in their believing. It meant nothing to him."

"He soon gathered a large following of that sort of believers. The sixth chapter of John informs us of how Jesus disposed of them. He put their faith to a real test and the story ends up with 'from that time many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him.' They believed in his name because they saw the miracles which he did."

"Evidently that was not acceptable or saving faith. We then ask: 'What is saving faith?' Going back two days before the event recorded here we have the official introduction of Jesus given by John the Baptist. Jesus was introduced as 'the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.'"

"And still farther back the angel in announcing His coming birth said: 'They shall call His name Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins.' Here we have a clue. Any approach to Jesus must be in connection with the sin question and His dealing with it and our faith must have its bearing there and not on the fact that He performed miracles. He must be accepted as the 'Lamb of God.'"

"But that has a sacrificial atmosphere. It savors of blood and that does not set well in this esoteric age. We would rather believe in miracles or anything else, than to believe that the death of Christ has anything to do with our salvation. But, to leave that out is a faith that Jesus has no faith in. There is no use in substituting Jesus the Teacher. This world doesn't want what He taught. Nor do we need Jesus the Example."

"There are thousands of human examples who, if followed, would make this a much better world. We haven't caught up with them yet so why adopt one exalted as Jesus? And we don't need Jesus the King for we still think we can govern ourselves so we 'will not have this Man rule over us.'"

"In one great need around which are all our needs Jesus is given to us as 'the Lamb that taketh away the sin of the world.' This directs our attention back to the pasover when God said: 'When I see the blood, I will pass over you.' The lamb without blemish playing at the front door would have meant nothing. It was the blood of that lamb that meant the salvation of the members of the family within. So there is a faith that does not save, but, there are those that do believe to the saving of the soul." (Hob. 10:39.)

Christian Science

"The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought; he maketh empty the device of the people of the palmist." These words of the Psalmist were the Golden Text in the lesson-sermon on "Unreality" yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist.

One of the Scriptural selections included the Master's prophecies, from Matthew: "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. . . . And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "This material world is even now becoming the arena for conflicting forces. . . . These disturbances will continue until the end of error, when all discord will be swallowed up in spiritual truth."

"Down upon our knees! It would seem that the American would be showing unbecomingly such signs of repentance and humility in these troubled days. Clear signs of that attitude are, however, strangely lacking," said Harry Ervin Owens in his communion message yesterday morning. "The poet reminds us that many say in their difficulties 'God, be merciful' that never called out 'God be praised.' Nevertheless we do not find men even in this midst of the buffeting of the last four years turning to God as their refuge and strength."

"We hear many expressing a desire for the end of hard times, for the return of prosperity, for the ending of this tide of unemployment, for easier and more comfortable living. But little acknowledgment of our having been wrong and on the wrong track, of our injustice and unbrotherliness and stupidity along with an angry hunger to find the right course no matter what it costs or who pays the price seems to be forthcoming. Jesus' message to his own age sounds in the ears of this. Repent for the kingdom of God is at hand. Not yet, however, have we on large scale heeded the searching words. Are we to do it eventually before we come out of our present plight?"

"Only upon our knees, literally or figuratively speaking, do we become sensitive to God and his good will for all mankind. Only upon our knees do we come to that most difficult experience of admitting our wrongs and renouncing them. Only upon our knees do we come to the place where we pledge ourselves to complete alliance with God in the furtherance of his herculean task of causing justice and peace and brotherliness to prevail. Only there do we dedicate ourselves to the far from finished work of effecting the welfare of mankind. Down upon your knees, O America! Down upon your knees, O people of God!"

REV. E. W. MATZ TELLS WAY TO BE CHRISTIAN

Becoming a Christian begins with an experience of God as revealed in Christ, the Rev. E. W. Matz, pastor of the First Evangelical church told his congregation yesterday at morning service. His sermon topic was "Being a Christian."

He said in part: "In the story of the first century church we read of a man who almost became a Christian. 'Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.' Acts 26:28. We may wonder what would have happened had Agrippa really become a Christian. What really does happen when a person becomes a Christian? What does it mean to be a Christian?"

"King Agrippa acknowledged that becoming a Christian would involve at least his own consent or decision. He also acknowledged that some one might be instrumental in persuading him to come to that momentous decision in life. Becoming a Christian however, involves more than persuasion and decision. No doubt King Agrippa was also aware of that fact. A good example of a Christian stood before him, Paul, in chains, paying the price of being a Christian, Paul, paying the price of promoting the program of Christ on earth. Yes, Agrippa saw more in the act of becoming a Christian than merely a decision, or a mental consent."

"Becoming a Christian begins with an experience of God as revealed by Christ. Real religion is more than a philosophy. A Christian is one who is saved from sin, his guilt, its power, and its consequences by Jesus Christ through faith in Him; and who has dedicated his life to Christ in service."

"There are certain steps in the process by which we become Christians. (1) We must be willing to acknowledge our sin. The psalmist said: 'Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done that which is evil in thy sight. 'And the wiseman of old said: 'Whoso confesseth and forsaketh his transgressions shall obtain mercy.' (2) We must repent our sin. Repentance means godly sorrow for sin, and turning away from sin unto God. 'Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto Jehovah, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.' (3) We must believe in Christ. We must trust Him. And commit ourselves unto Him, our Lord and Master of our lives. (4) Confession repentance and faith secure forgiveness of sin, and a new heart."

"Being a Christian means to follow Jesus Christ in service. It means to be good. And to be good means to be good for something. There is no such thing as goodness in the abstract sense. No person is good unless he is good for something. Goodness must relate itself to something concrete. Goodness finds its expression in useful service. Lazarus went to heaven not because he was poor, but because he was good and useful in spite of poverty. The rich man spoken of in the parable concerning Lazarus, found himself in torment, not because he was rich, but because he had failed to make use of his great opportunities in life. During his life time he received many good things, but failed to use them for good."

"Being a Christian does not mean to escape the City of Destruction as conceived by John Bunyan. It means to save the city. He who would save his own life will lose it, but he who would lose his life to save others will find it. Many are failing to be Christian or Christlike by failing to seek the common good for all. To be a Christian is the opposite of being selfish. Thus it is that Christianity cannot really succeed where selfishness is a common practice. It is impossible to be a Christian, and at the same time be a partner of any economic or social order that rewards selfishness, or makes unjustifiable profit for a few at the expense of many. To be a Christian means to share and help others to share the good of the land among all. It also means to share the spirit and life of the Master, and to make Him Lord and Ruler of all of life."

MYSTERY SHROUDS INJURY OF WOMAN

Conflicting stories of how Mrs. Jesse Hollenbeck, 38, 1629 West Eighth street, was seriously injured in a wreck Saturday lent an air of mystery to the case and caused authorities to question the possibility of a train wreck in Orange.

When Mrs. Hollenbeck was brought to the St. Joseph's hospital in an unconscious condition, her male companion refused to give his name and disappeared immediately. He told a vague story of hitting a train engine at North Batavia street and the Santa Fe tracks with his car but would not give further details. He had slight injuries about the head but would not remain at the hospital for treatment.

Santa Fe officials denied any knowledge of a train wreck and said there was no train at that time of day. A check of Orange police, California Highway Patrol officers and sheriffs' office did not show any wreck of the county at that time and information was refused from the Hollenbeck residence this morning.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG -- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON By George Durso

HEAT One has only to travel from New York to Washington on one of the special trains to get at least a half-way idea of how the chisel is being whetted for NRA. Two grey-haired gentlemen were on their way to attend the opening hearing of the hotel code. One of the two was so lusty-voiced that no one could be accused of eaves-dropping.

The loud-voiced, grey-haired hotel man had plenty of short cuts to beat the code. He explained in a tone that rose over the flat wheel on his particular parlor car just how hours could be staggered and "part-time" employees engaged. His milder-voiced friend agreed it might be a good idea.

The man who could be heard above all the noises of a fast train finally admitted one fear. "If we just can keep the engineers from organizing, we'll be all right," he rumbled. "That's our only fear. With winter coming on they could turn off the heat."

HEATERS That overheard conversation inspired this reporter to call on John Posselt, president of the International Union of Operating Engineers. Take it from Posselt that he has the heat on insofar as organization is concerned. He says he has 64 new charters.

At present the Operating Engineers number 62,000. That is a pick-up of about 15,000 since the New Deal started. A big drive is on to organize.

Application for the Engineers' union necessitates mechanical equipment in the building. Without it the man in charge becomes a janitor.

The union men who have been organizing this particular group report home-made chiseling to the nth degree. Those who don't get a fair wage, say the organizers, put the heat on the coal man, the grocery boy, the newspaper hustler, the milkman, et cetera. If they don't come through they don't deliver in that particular building.

FORD Take it from a press association desk man who has been watching the nation-wide report for months the sniping at NRA is so open as to be ludicrous.

General Johnson has made several false starts toward holding up a horrible example. The men who are still battling over a code with NRA say Henry Ford should have been made the goat. This comes from all sides.

Ford seems to have Washington stopped cold in the light of his latest wage and hour announcements.

CHAMPAGNE "is a name known round the world. But not many of our new drink-ers know the French government sort of trademarked the name and made it applicable only to wine coming from a particular province of France."

In this general connection the United States may well be surprised with wine ads as soon as the 26th state performs.

Exactly ninety cases of Argentine wine reached the Washington Embassy for propaganda purposes recently. The Ambassador and his attaches distributed it where they thought it would do the most good. Unfortunately they forgot the United States had been on a bath-us gin diet for years. About twenty cases were passed out to local debutantes and their silken-bearded boy friends.

The wine was just so much chaser to these hard-playing adolescents.

The other seventy cases undoubtedly were put to good use by the Embassy.

EDUCATION In serious vein, there is going to be a tidy advertising war for the American wine market once prohibition is repealed.

The Argentine produces fine wine. So does Chile. So does California—Ohio—New York. It's just a question of education.

WHISKEY Drug store whiskey is getting to be a problem. Ever since the extra session of Congress, which loosened up the business of acquiring a prescription pint, soda fountain prices have been soaring out of all proportions.

The bootlegger still can do a profitable business and laugh. Chain drug stores would like to buy up a lot of Canadian and English whiskey. Despite the import tax they could get it at a very wholesome price for retail.

The catch is that the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol won't issue any permits for "medicinal whiskey."

Men representing the chain stores won't say so openly but they intimate strongly the distillers' lobby may be responsible.

NOTES One of Washington's leading citizens may be quoted as saying it is almost impossible to find a Republican in town any more, but when one is discovered he always plugs for the Roosevelt Administration.

For instance published weekly comparisons of business figures with those of corresponding weeks a year ago show we are moving backward instead of forward. This is hardly fair because a year ago we were in the midst of an artificial rise. Comparison of the trend now with that in 1931 is encouraging rather than otherwise. But the defeatists seem bent on tearing down the confidence they lustily promulgated must be re-established.

Local new deal sympathizers say the government cannot afford to let them get away with this artificial bearishness. But they add that the answer must be constructive achievement and not the ballyhoo that arouses the expectation of miracles.

UNIONS Steel moguls are aghast at the progress of unionization in their plants since the code went into effect. They thought they had the unions short-circuited with back whatever profits it gets the next few years into working capital as long as it is impossible to raise funds through normal channels. This is supposed to motivate against re-employment and also against wage rises which might be expected to accrue through returning prosperity.

This propaganda is having some effect on certain labor leaders but it is too early to tell whether it can be sold to organized labor as a whole. The recruiters are feeling their way. If they succeed it will be one of the neatest tricks of the year.

SALVATION A group of New York retailers are considering a bold stroke of price policy this month. Instead of raising prices they may lower them.

They have met decided consumer resistance on the price increases already recorded. The sales barometer indicates stormy weather ahead. So they think they might as well take the bull by the horns and try out the theory that sales volume will offset lower prices and added costs. Most business groups have been too timid to experiment along these lines.

But if it works in one line it will set the example for others and such a development may prove the blue eagle's salvation.

Meanwhile many retailers are yelling murder about the way manufacturers have jacked up prices. Complaints of profiteering are rising like a river in flood. The recovery program is in for a sharp set-back from this source unless the government can figure out the answer.

BUYING The lag in buying by the re-employed is becoming very noticeable. New purchasing power is going into back rent, grocery bills and other debts instead of retail trade channels. Also there are signs that the re-employed are building reserves before raising their standard of living.

The root of the trouble seems to be that they don't feel secure yet in their new jobs. Local authorities say that confidence must be more fully restored before buy now campaigns can do any good.

DEFEATISTS New York enemies of NRA (a curious combine of old guard and radical inflationists) are singing the blues louder than they dared a few weeks ago. They are more open with their criticism now that the target seems more vulnerable. Their propaganda has passed the whispering stage and gone into the field of trade statistics.

For instance published weekly comparisons of business figures with those of corresponding weeks a year ago show we are moving backward instead of forward. This is hardly fair because a year ago we were in the midst of an artificial rise. Comparison of the trend now with that in 1931 is encouraging rather than otherwise. But the defeatists seem bent on tearing down the confidence they lustily promulgated must be re-established.

Local new deal sympathizers say the government cannot afford to let them get away with this artificial bearishness. But they add that the answer must be constructive achievement and not the ballyhoo that arouses the expectation of miracles.

UNIONS Steel moguls are aghast at the progress of unionization in their plants since the code went into effect. They thought they had the unions short-circuited with wage increases but they guessed wrong. Most operators accept the situation as inevitable. A few want to fight but haven't yet discovered how.

RADIO So far the two large broadcasting systems, Columbia and National, have had things pretty much their own way in the radio field. Later, however, their monopoly is being threatened by the reorganized Federal Broadcasting company which controls station WMA. This station recently went on a full-time schedule and is the most powerful after the NBC and CBS key stations in New York.

The new men behind the guns are a group of prosperous young business men—no more, no less. But under the microscope strong Republican ties are traceable. It is an able outfit.

The brand new Amalgamated Broadcasting system comprising about 10 stations will probably serve for experimental purposes of the American Telephone and Telegraph and is no present competitor to the existing chains.

HOUSES New York hears that Secretary Wickes is planning to put his public works administration directly into the housing business if states and cities don't step on the gas with their construction projects. They say here it is the only way he will get action in time to make a real dent in winter unemployment.

SIDELIGHTS The new pay scale of airplane pilots sounds grand but the pilots no like....They want mileage not hours....There's a real fight brewing....The steel industry has never been able to make up its own mind to lower the prices of steel rails so the president had to step in....They admit they will be better off....A good swift kick sometimes works wonders

Laguanan To Face Judge Oct. 5 On Car Number Count

BREA, Oct. 2.—Members of a newly organized girls' club, as yet without a name, met in the city park after school Friday and enjoyed a weiner bake and picnic supper with their leader, Miss Lucy Craig. The girls present were Pearl Lawson, Nadine Wayland, Marguerite Dike and Esther Perdue. Marla Davis, president of the group, could not be present.

The arrest was made by Chief of Police Abe Johnson on a warrant issued by Judge Edward H. Miller, of Huntington Park, on complaint of Clarence Jordan. According to Chief Johnson, Linkey traded automobiles with Jordan, whose brother operates a drug store in Laguna Beach, and it is charged that the engine and chassis numbers do not agree, as is required by law. No bail was set by Judge Miller and Linkey was released after he had signed an agreement to appear in the justice court at Huntington Park October 5.

It was charged that Hill, who is the agent for an automobile finance company, was acting for a friend when he broke the window of the Thomson automobile with a revolver butt and was attempting to tow the car from Laguna Beach.

PLAN INSURANCE FOR ATHLETES OF SANTA ANA SCHOOLS

Arrangements have been completed for insurance to protect students of the high school and Junior college in case of injury while engaged in athletic competition whether on or off the school grounds through the aid of the California Scholastic Federation.

The insurance, primarily for the football team, is open to any student who wishes to take advantage of the offer, said D. K. Hammond, president of the Junior college.

The policy will cover for all injuries received while engaging in athletic games, or R. O. T. C. work, at any time and anywhere.

The student bodies of both the high school and Junior college have this week made arrangements to place the insurance on all members of the football teams, the premium to be paid by the student body concerned.

The plan was evolved by the California Scholastic federation, in conjunction with a national insurance company that is recognized by the state commissioner of insurance, school officials said.

Hammond said that many schools in the Federation have already taken the insurance on their athletes.

He pointed out that the premium is low enough to allow almost anyone, who is eligible, to use the plan, and that it protected for all athletics, whether sponsored by the school or not.

WESLEY P. FORD IN SERMON ON 'SALT' SUNDAY

VILLA PARK, Oct. 2.—At Villa Park Community church Sunday morning, the pastor, Wesley P. Ford, used as his subject, "Salt." The text was found in Matthew 5:13: "Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men." He said in part:

"When salt comes in contact with a sore, it is painful. There are a lot of running and bleeding sores in the world and if we haven't become insipid, we will cause a lot of pain. If we are real salt, there is a vast number of sores that need to be cured. There is gambling, liquor, greed and jealousy.

"If salt is applied it causes pain. If we are salt which has not lost its savor, we will cause so much pain and aching that the world cannot lie down to rest, so some of the sores will be cured. If the salt has lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? We don't like to cause pain, and sometimes we would rather go around the other way than to attack directly, for it causes pain; so we avoid using salt for it causes pain when it comes in contact with open sores.

"The church of Christ started out with a cutting edge and a bitter tang; it turned things upside down. The church has got to continue to cut and to turn things upside down until things are made right. Too long have we neglected our duty. As the church grew it became more sane, and eager for more members; it became insipid. What about the church today? Have we lost our tang? It would be better for us to close our doors. We are not the church Jesus had in mind. Salt is a purifier and wherever it has gone it leaves things purified and cleansed. We have often heard men say, 'The church will die.' I do not believe the church is doomed. When salt becomes insipid it becomes good for nothing. We have lost our power and cutting edge."

Saints Lose On Fumbles, 14-2

SANTA BARBARA HOLDS ON GOAL LINE 5 TIMES

Santa Barbara's amazing line resistance, halting five consecutive running plays which Santa Ana engineered from within three yards of scoring territory in the last few minutes of play, shattered Saint hopes for a third touchdown and presented Clarence Schutte's dangerous Vaqueros with a 14-12 victory over Bill Fote's Coast league champions in a breath-taking prep tilt at Santa Barbara Saturday.

Unlike the 27-0 beating which Santa Ana handed Santa Barbara in the semi-finals of the Southern California championship play-offs here last fall, the contest was packed with surprises that kept an estimated crowd of 2500 fans on edge all the way.

Santa Ana's royal chance to win, but Santa Barbara's unwillingness to forfeit its two-point margin gained through perfect conversions, came within seven minutes of the gun in the fourth quarter.

Levens Starts Rally
LeRoy Levens, Saint quarter returned McLaughlin's punt 37 yards straight down the sidelines to put his teammates in scoring position on Santa Barbara's 23-yard mark. Art Stranske, fullback, plunged through center for two yards. A forward pass from Walt Hendrie to Ray Clark, halfback, was incomplete. On third down Hendrie made a yard through right tackle. Santa Barbara was penalized five yards for too many time-outs, and with the ball on the 15 and two yards to go for a first down, Hendrie whipped a short pass to Myron Newton, right end, who forced his way to the three-yard line. It was at this point that the Vaqueros held their champions.

Hendrie tried right end, gaining a half yard, and Stranske was stopped cold through center on second down. Hendrie started another end run, was tackled near his four-yard line, but a Santa Barbara line man was offside, and the Vaqueros were penalized to within one yard of their goal.

Waldo Smith, safety, tried a quarterback sneak through center, turned his body and planted the ball across the line, but officials claimed the whistle had blown before the "touchdown." With the ball inches away from scoring distance, Stranske drove at center, but was ridden back on Santa Ana's fifth opportunity.

Vaqueros Punt Out of Danger
Santa Barbara immediately punted out of danger, Smith of the Saints returning the ball to the Vaqueros 18-yard line. Santa Ana then unsuccessfully attempted four long passes. Halfback Hawkins throwing the final one past Newton over the goal to give Santa Barbara possession on its own 20. The Vaqueros held on to the ball, waited for the gun which sounded after three running plays.

Santa Barbara's brilliant defensive work in the final period provided only one of the major thrills of a hard fought contest. Walt Hendrie's 52-yard run for a touchdown in the first quarter swept the Vaqueros temporarily off their feet. Stranske returned the opening kickoff to midfield, but fumbled on the second Saint play and McLaughlin of Santa Barbara recovered on his own 45. Unable to gain, however, the Vaqueros punted to Quarterback Levens, who was downed on Santa Ana's 15. Stranske made three yards through center, and then came the sensational run of the fleet Hendrie, who started as if on an end jump but dashed back through right tackle, out to the sidelines and raced the rest of the way behind excellent interference. Tackle Charles Roemer blocked the last Vaquero out of the play on Santa Barbara's 17. Newton's try for the extra point was wild.

Santa Ana's Fumbles Fatal
Santa Barbara's two touchdowns developed from costly fumbles by Santa Ana in the second quarter, when the Saints looked like everything but the team that dominated most of the second half.

Early in the second period, End Donchi recovered a Saint fumble 14 yards away from the Santa Ana goal, and Santa Barbara tried a pass on the first down. Halfback Howe made the catch from McLaughlin, and ran unopposed across the right side of the goal. Joe Huppert, left-footed guard, kicked a perfect conversion to give the Vaqueros the lead, 7 to 6. Santa Barbara recovered Stranske's fumble on the Saints' 3-yard line late in the same period.

Bench-Warmer Tackles Rival Halfback

HOLLISTER, Oct. 2.—(UP)—John McGuire, San Jose high school football bench-warmer, couldn't see his team "make it."

Louis Spadaford, Hollister halfback, was away on a long run, a cinch for a touchdown. McGuire threw off his blanket, ran in from the sidelines and brought Spadaford down with a fine tackle.

Fisticuffs followed. So did a penalty on San Jose for having 12 men on the field. Hollister finally won the game anyway.

Clear Way For 3 Significant Grid Contests

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Pacific Coast teams that are strong on paper came through without exception in week-end games and cleared the decks for three games next Saturday that may or may not be excelled for any time this season.

Southern California's perennial champions will play "Babe" Hollingsberry's dangerous Cougars of Washington State college at Los Angeles. The Cougars have always been poised to S. C.

St. Mary's got a real test against a vastly improved California team at Berkeley.

Santa Clara's ambitious veterans, who stopped California cold, will hike out to Palo Alto and attempt to do the same thing with Stanford. Never has the "little" non-conference school beaten both California and Stanford the same season.

Those are the bell-ringers on Saturday's schedule.

Crus to Meet Utah
U. C. L. A. will play an intercollegiate game with Utah at Los Angeles Friday night.

In other Saturday games, none of them Pacific Coast conference contests, Oregon will entertain Little Columbia of Portland, Oregon State will test its teeth against Gonzaga of Portland, Idaho will play Whitman, Montana will play Carroll college, and the Olympic club will journey to Reno to meet Nevada.

St. Mary's played "under wraps" in defeating San Francisco university, 7 to 0 in Kesar stadium Sunday. Coach "Slip" Madigan used three complete teams but only a half-dozen plays.

Scouts Cliff Herd and Aubrey Devine of U. S. C. worked a lot harder than the Gaels. They watched every play with binoculars and described it in detail to a stenographer who took pages of notes. St. Mary's plays the Trojans in two weeks.

California played last night's three games against the Cal Aggies Saturday, looking worse than when Santa Clara beat them. Then they snapped out of it. The famed Ingram "50 plays" started to work and they found two fleet ball-packers in Al Thorell and Gal Varner. They beat the Aggies 39 to 0 and went on to bowl over Nevada, 34 to 0.

Stanford Unimpressive
Stanford used few plays and lacked a goal-line drive in noosing out U. C. L. A. 3 to 0. The toe of Bill Corbus, All-American guard, gave them the field goal when that stubborn defense of the Bruins held them seven times within a few yards of the final stripe.

Washington State's strength is unknown. Saturday the Cougars swamped Puget Sound of Tacoma, 56 to 0.

Southern California also played under wraps Saturday, beating Loyola 18 to 0 after the Lions held courageously most of the game.

Washington won its first conference game from Idaho, 32 to 6, crushing the lighter Vandals under a versatile attack.

Oregon stopped Gonzaga, 14 to 0. Oregon State won a conference tilt from Montana 20 to 0.

SANTA ANITA WINS SUMMER LOOP FLAG

Santa Anita finally clinched the Orange County Summer league baseball championship yesterday, defeating Newport Harbor, 4-2, in the third and deciding game of a playoff series between the first and second half champions.

Trailing, 2-1, in the seventh inning, Santa Anita scored twice on timely hits by Munoz, Maldonado and Villa, and added another in the eighth. The box score:

DONS AT WORK FOR SATURDAY'S POMONA GAME

Whether a junior college team can compete on even terms with a Southern conference eleven, a question long unsettled in the minds of many football fans, will be answered in part Saturday when Coach Bill Cook's Dons invade Claremont for a skirmish with Coach Eugene Nixon's Pomona college varsity.

Santa Ana's third contest will be its first "day" assignment, the Dons having battled the U. S. C. freshmen and Urban academy of Los Angeles to respective 6-6 and 0-0 deadlocks in night games at the Bowl here.

Five seasons ago, when the Dons were struggling for public notice, they engaged the Occidental varsity as an experiment, and lost 19 to 7. With a strong squad—numbering more than 50 experienced players—they are now ready to try their luck against Pomona, and it is no secret that they are pointing toward the Sagehens with enthusiasm.

Pomona's strength has not been tested, except in a 6-0 informal scrimmage with Riverside junior college last week, but they say the Sagehens prospects are about as good as they've ever been. Nixon has a veteran backfield and a heavy line, but very few reserves.

With a month of practice behind, Santa Ana should be in better condition for its first conference game against Pomona. Jaycee Oct. 31, but at present the Dons apparently need improved blocking and better aerial work. Coach Cook hopes to iron out these shortcomings before the games at Claremont this week and with the U. C. L. A. freshmen here Oct. 13.

Unless his other candidates make a deeper impression during the next five drills, the Santa Ana men plan to start against the Sagehens a combination of Harold Welty, quarter; Harry McInteer and Wilburn Anderson, halfbacks; "Porky" Bell, full; Jim Lash and Paul Perlinch, ends; Capt. "Bomo" Koral and Miles Norton, tackles; Jack Fredericks and Bob Hafer, guards; and Ray Hoar, center. Changes in the line are more probable than in the backfield, which showed up well against Coach Homer Oliver's powerful Urban team, considering the inferior blocking of the Don forwards.

Indicating that competition in the Eastern jaycee conference will be as spirited as ever, results of practice games Saturday show Fullerton of the Eastern division with a 13-0 win over Pasadena, defending champion of the Western league; Chaffrey of the Eastern division with a 19-0 victory over Long Beach of the Western; and San Bernardino of the Eastern with a close 6-7 defeat from Santa Monica.

ECKHART HITS .417 FOR COAST RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Two new Pacific Coast league records were held today by Oscar Eckhart, hard-hitting Mission outfielder.

Eckhart glared yesterday against Hollywood by smashing out six hits in eight times at bat to boost his season's hitting mark to .417. The previous record was .409, set by Iko Boone in 1929.

His performance in hacking out 317 hits in 750 times up also established him as the league leading hitter for the third straight year. He is the first three-time consecutive winner of coast batting honors. The figures were unofficial.

Eckhart earlier in the season announced he would retire from baseball unless he got a "real chance" with a major league club next year. While having been signed for tryouts in previous years, he was returned to the Coast league before the season got into full stride.

K. C. To Hold Open Smoker Tomorrow

Santa Ana council, No. 1842, Knights of Columbus, will hold an "open house" smoker tomorrow night at Getty hall, Fourth and Porter streets. Boxing and other entertainment will feature a program that begins at 8 o'clock with the general public invited.

Bill Trillo, winner of the National Catholic lightweight boxing title in Chicago last January, will appear in one of the four matches.

Braves Finish 4th In National Race

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—For the first time in 12 years, the Boston Braves finished in the National league's first division by beating out the St. Louis Cardinals for fourth place on the last day of the season yesterday.

Register Will Present Ball Broadcast

The Register will relay by loud-speaker to tomorrow's broadcast of the opening game of the Washington-New York world series in New York.

Beginning at 10:15 a. m., Santa Ana time, the customary radio report of the baseball classic will be "tuned up" so that all may hear.

RUTH DENIES HE'LL BE PITCHER IN '34

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Babe Ruth answered the question which all baseball fans are asking when he said, "No, sir! I've no intention of becoming a regular pitcher."

"Why, I'd take me about two years to get my arm in shape for regular pitching. You don't just jump into regular pitching, you know."

The great man made this statement last night, following yesterday's mound triumph for the New York Yankees over the Boston Red Sox. At 39, the all-time home run king, who started his professional baseball career, 20 years ago as a southpaw pitcher, returned to the mound and pitched his club to a 6 to 5 triumph, allowing the Bostonians 12 hits but keeping them scattered.

He also drove out the home run that won the game. It was his 34th of the season.

WHITEHILL DUE TO URL FIRST FOR SENATORS?

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Having proceeded quietly and with a deceptive composure to this point, events suddenly gathered momentum today and came on with a rush as the World series of 1933 went into the final 24 hours of waiting before action seizes the indicator and drama takes charge.

Both principles, namely, the New York Giants and Washington Senators, went through the gestures of a final workout early today. Even earlier, the Giants' mid-town office threw open its doors to a special sale for the cut-rate clients in an effort to "move" the 8000 seats in the lower stand, still remaining unsold for the opening game tomorrow.

The sale, which will abandon the old three-game racket in favor of the single game purchase, opened at 9 o'clock.

At that hour, there had been no change in the betting, which continued to favor the Senators for the series and the Giants for the first game. There also was no change in the short but resolute line of vigilantes facing the locked and silent gates. Only the weather, in fact, had something new to offer. It had turned sharp and brisk overnight, with more than a hint that these conditions might continue through the opening game.

Scalpers Ask $20 Pair
Some felt that the fall in temperature might prevent a sell out tomorrow; others, that the Giants' decision to sell the rest of their tickets on a day-by-day basis will close the doors at game-time.

Either way, the management figured to do itself pretty proud. If there are any noticeable gaps in the crowd tomorrow, the burden may fall on Broadway's ticket brokers who have acquired some choice locations and are holding same for a minimum of $20 a pair.

However, that's just so much quicksilver. When the ball game is held, $20 worth of nothing is liable to be very little.

Meantime, the contenders were on the scene overnight after playing their final games of the regular league seasons yesterday. The Senators were shut out by the Athletics in 11 innings. The Giants were beaten by the Dodgers in nine. But they were only out for an airing and it didn't mean a thing.

Neither will the workouts today, although some of the Senators will be looking at that musical comedy set that is called the Polo Grounds for the first time and the Giants for the first time, at least, will be hitting against the more agile American league ball. Tomorrow, however, they'll be hitting against the National league ball and probably Earl Whitehill, the left-hander.

Nats May Start Whitehill
Joe Cronin, the boy manager and non-confider, hasn't declared himself on this and won't, but the general understanding seems to be that Whitehill is his man.

On the other hand, Will Terry, the boy manager and speaker-outter, has long since indicated that he is sticking to Cal Hubbard, which is as it should be. In this respect, Mr. Hubbard is just another roll of adhesive tape. I mean he's the kind that will stick with you.

He's also the answer to the fact that the Giants rule 4 to 5 for the opening game while being no better than 10 to 7 for the series. The sharpshooters simply figure Hubbard's screw-ball to beat the Senators the first time out, after which the latter's punch is expected to carry it through the rest of the way.

As one man put the matter, it seems to be a case of "beat Hubbard and take the pot." He didn't add, "Don't and you won't." But that may be the pay off.

Series Front From Air as War Begins

Surrounded by tall buildings and railroad tracks, the Giants and the Senators open the world series at the Polo Grounds. The photo shows the battleground set down in one corner of New York as seen from the air.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF SERIES ACES

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(INS)—Aside from perfect co-operation and harmony on both clubs the outstanding playing of individuals contributed a great part of the success of the Washington Senators and New York Giants in winning their respective pennants. These same men may be the heroes of the series.

Here are thumb nail sketches of the players who played important roles in the victory of their respective teams:

NEW YORK GIANTS
Bill Terry—They call him the Miracle Man of Baseball now, where six months ago he was just another young and inexperienced manager. Only 35 years old, he brought New York a national league pennant in his first full season as a manager. Taking over the reins dropped by John J. McGraw, baseball's Little Napoleon, Terry was faced with an almost insurmountable task of trying to uphold the fine record of his predecessor. But his method of leadership met with instant approval and the players worked harmoniously to a successful finish. Terry's own brilliant playing aided no little in the team's victory. Bill played in one world's series as a member of the Giants in 1924.

Carl Hubbell—His supple left arm mowed down the opposition consistently through the long grind of the season and he held up exceptionally well under his job until the pennant was clinched. Twenty-two victories were chalked up to his credit before he was eased up and put under wraps for the series. He can't be regarded other than the best pitcher in the National league, and he is being counted on to stop the Senators at least once in the series.

Adolfo Luque—This 48-year-old veteran saved many games for the Giants with his effective relief hurling in the trying days of the fight for the flag. Time and again he stepped into the breach when victory was slipping away to turn the back the rally. Seldom used as a starting pitcher, Luque comes in for a full share of glory with his brilliant pitching in emergencies and Terry will count on him for the same role against the Senators, if necessary.

Hal Schumacher—Developed under the careful handling of Terry he became one of the most promising pitchers in the league. Regarded as little more than an inexperienced youngster when the season opened, Schumacher pitched his way to new heights and his successes aided the Giants in their climb up the ladder. Schumacher is another reason for Terry's newest cognomen, "Baseball's Miracle Man" and the Giants' manager plans on using him to start one of the series games despite precedent that youngsters seldom make the grade in the classics.

Freddy Fitzsimmons—Reliable and steady through the year, Fitzsimmons aided materially by registering consistently. His experience and knowledge as a veteran lent needed balance to the young pitching staff. Although he has worn the New York uniform for nine seasons he will face his series fire for the first time.

Roy ("Tarzan") Parmelee—Pitches the fastest ball in the league, players say, but it was not until this season that he was able to learn the first rudiments of control. And that improvement was brought about under Terry's tutelage and aided another cog in the smooth running machine which moved the Giants to the front. However, it is not likely he will pitch in the series.

Gus Mancuso—His catching and handling of the pitchers stands out as one of the bright spots in the Giants' triumph. Publicly lauded by Terry for his part, Mancuso went through the season, working smoothly and efficiently behind the plate, and his determination to win carried the hurriers over many of the rough spots. The world's series will be an old story to him. He caught for the St. Louis Cardinals in the classics of 1930 and 1931.

John ("Blondy") Ryan—Came up from the minors at the start of the season with nothing to come through in the pinch and recommend him except a scout's report and a lot of newspaper clippings. Needed to fill in at shortstop, Ryan dispelled all thoughts he wouldn't make the grade by his graceful handling of the ball and the manner in which he fitted into the Giants' inner defense. Weak with the stick, but improving steadily, Ryan has earned his spurs with his speed and throwing in the field and is expected to weather the series storm.

Mel Ott—The young veteran whose work in the outer gardens and his batting was an important part of the winning fight. Fast and possessing a deadly arm, Ott was invaluable. His timely hits paved the way for a score of victories and his home run slams broke up more than one ball game. Always a dangerous man at bat the Senators' pitchers will pay particular attention to him.

WASHINGTON SENATORS
Joe Cronin—Another managerial baseball marvel, according to observers. Succeeding Walter Johnson as pilot, this 27-year-old youth molded a powerful team that came on to win the American league flag as the aging New York Yankee machine cracked and broke up under the strain of trying to win again.

Like Terry, Cronin will be leading his first team into a world's series. Under his urging and leadership, the Senators presented a powerful and aggressive front, forging steadily ahead despite the early threat of the Yankees. His manipulating of the pitching staff and his own playing in the field as well as his hitting were power-stimulants in the team's success.

Alvin Crowder—Walter Johnson once called him the best pitcher in baseball today, and despite any disagreements from other sources, the Senators in general, and Cronin in particular, agree. The lanky right-hander burned his fast ones across the plate to hang up 24 victories against 13 defeats, the highest mark of the team's staff. Cronin regards Crowder as a sure bet in the series.

Earl Whitehill—The 20 victories he hung up in his first season as a Senator accounted in a large measure for the winning of the pennant. Whitehill was the pitching medicine the club needed and his brilliance and effectiveness aided the Washington team to run up a substantial lead over the Yankees. The Giants' batters are likely to be troubled trying to connect with his fast ones.

Walter Stewart—The third and last member of the pitching trio that shouldered most of Washington's heavy mound duty. "Wally" chipped in with 13 triumphs to add to the club's lead. Steady and consistent he may draw one of the starting assignments.

Joe Kuhel—A raw recruit up from the minors at the start of the 1931 season he was broken in to the first base job by that finished veteran, Joe Judge, whom he later succeeded. Learning rapidly and making the most of his natural ability, Kuhel developed into a dependable regular and his snappy work this season gave additional strength to the infield. Tried, and not found wanting, Kuhel is likely to be one of the series' sensations with his defense playing and hitting. He rapped the ball for a solid .321 this year.

Leon ("Goose") Goslin—A veteran of two world's series and 13 years in the major league, this hard hitting and dependable outfielder figures to give the Senators the necessary experience needed in a championship series. Away from Washington for over two seasons, he returned this year to help Cronin and his mates blast away to the pennant with hard hitting that hovered around the .302 mark.

"Heinie" Manush—A deadly hitter and a finished outfielder Manush is another veteran to be depended upon for steady playing under stress. A threat all season for the American league batting title with an average that stayed around .332 figures, Manush's hitting is likely to be one of the upsetting factors of the series for the Giants' pitchers. He usually of the season with nothing to come through in the pinch and

Big Oil, Gas Well Roars In At Huntington Beach

NEW PRODUCER SAID LARGEST IN THIS AREA

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 2.—The Termo Oil company, managed by Ernie Coombs, has brought in what is claimed to be the largest well ever placed on production in Orange county. The well came in Sunday morning and steadily increased its gas and oil flow. Oil operators say the well is doing 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day and 5000 to 15,000 barrels of oil. The roar of the new well can be heard all over the field.

The well is located on Ocean avenue near Twenty-first street on land purchased by Coombs and associates from the Associated Oil company and Pacific Electric railway company.

The first big Termo well is shut down pending court decision. The well was capped following the state's tidelands oil suit. The Minnesota Oil company, also known as the Wallace and Shultz organization, is drilling in its No. 1 well on Eighteenth street near Olive. The well is expected to be a good producer. John H. Marion and H. M. McCombs under the name of the H. B. Oil company are drilling in their first well to the new sand on Sixteenth street near Ocean avenue. This well also has a fine showing and looks to be a winner. Sterling and Crawford have been swabbing for three days on their well on Twentieth and Olive in the third block from the ocean. So far the attempt to bring it in has been disappointing, but the operators are confident.

VOTERS FAVOR HIGH SCHOOL IN FALL OF 1934

Representing about 15 per cent of the registered voters, electors of the newly-organized Laguna Beach High school district have voted 44 to 11 to instruct the board of education not to start a high school course in Laguna Beach until September, 1934. The vote was a victory for G. R. Dunham, former president of the board, who opposed the high school district plan during the recent campaign and for the Rev. Raymond I. Brahams, who was opposed to offering the course at this time.

The mass meeting, called by the board, was presided over by Dunham, in place of Mrs. Florence Collins, who is the head of the board of education. The sentiment of the meeting favored permitting the board to employ the services of an architect to draw plans upon which estimates may be made for elementary schools in the cliffs and Arch Beach sections of the city and making such alterations as will be needed for the present grammar school to turn it into a high school.

It has been estimated that there are 300,000,000 unmarried women in the world.

LOIS M'MAHAN, WILLIS MANUEL WED IN CHURCH

FULLERTON, Oct. 2.—Before a large group of relatives and friends, Miss Lois McMahon was married yesterday at high noon to Willis Manuel following the regular church service at the Baptist church, with the Rev. Francis E. Hawes, pastor, reading the single ring ceremony.

Miss McMahon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude McMahon, of Placentia, and Mr. Manuel is son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Manuel, formerly of Fullerton, now of Brea.

The ceremony was preceded with organ numbers, played by Miss Genevieve Woodward, who played the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin for the wedding march.

The bride was dressed in a beautiful white satin gown, floor length, and wore a veil. She carried a bouquet of lovely white flowers. Her sister, Miss Beatrice McMahon, accompanied her, and was dressed in peach tulle, cut floor length.

Ellsworth Gregory accompanied the bridegroom as best man. The church was beautifully decorated in large baskets of pink dahlias and amaryllis, with ferns, and with tall candelabra with pink tapers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McMahon entertained at dinner for the bride and bridegroom and the members of the family. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Manuel, Lois, Louis and Richard Manuel, Mr. and Mrs. McMahon, Beatrice, Gordon and Lowell McMahon, Ellsworth Gregory and Miss Dorothy Solesbee and the bride and groom.

Thursday, October 5, on "Technocracy—With a Program for Immediate Action in Southern California."

It secures to every man that security in a world of abundant production to which he is entitled. The NRA is attempting to do this very thing, but falls short of the scientific steps necessary for accomplishment."

Dr. Mills will reveal for the first time in Orange county the plan of putting Technocracy in practice, he advises. The public is invited to hear him. There will be no charge but a collection will be taken.

CHEST DRIVE LEADERS

Shown here are three of the leaders in the Santa Ana Community Chest drive for funds to finance activities of agency members during the coming year. They are, left to right: Mrs. F. E. Coulter, named by the board with J. S. Smart, to act as advisory executives, in dual control with the campaign director, W. J. Tway; John A. Cranston, chairman of the establishments division, and W. K. Hillyard, vice president of the board of directors and chairman and acting president of the board during the campaign.

$750 PLEDGE FOR SANTA ANA CHEST, FIRST REPORTED, IS CHALLENGE TO COMMUNITY

A pledge of $750, the first gift in the 1933 Community Chest appeal which is conditioned by a challenge to the leaders of Santa Ana, was reported this morning by W. A. Taylor, vice chairman of division two of the advance gifts department, at Chest headquarters, 504 North Main street. Five other subscribers must equal the $750 pledge before it becomes valid, Taylor reported.

"The gift of $750 is an open challenge to every man and woman in the advance gifts department. While that sum is most generous we feel that there are surely a hundred people in Santa Ana of like capacity and equal generosity. My division, and every other division I know, are going to strive to the utmost to make this $750 donor or happy by matching his gift, Taylor said.

The gift as reported is from a local company and is a consolidated pledge from the corporation and its officers, a method of giving frequently in use. Taylor stated that the conditional pledge could be met by such combination giving or by the gifts of individuals or companies.

"It appears to me that this opening pledge in the campaign is a good omen," William J. Tway, director of the campaign, said today. "It indicates fully that those who have the community at heart are still able and willing to give. The organization making this pledge has gone through the same depression and experienced all of the struggles against adverse conditions and competitive methods that have been experienced by business establishments as a whole throughout the nation," he added.

The Advance Gifts department, 30 strong, swung into action today in an effort to raise $20,000 of the $33,500 budget approved for 1933. Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock the vice chairman of five divisions will meet at Community Chest headquarters for an initial report and conference as to the progress of the work.

COOKING CLASS SYMPOSIUM TO MARK TWO YEAR ANNIVERSARY MEET TUESDAY

The fall Register Cooking school, October 18, 19 and 20 at the West Coast theater will be in the form of an anniversary for the J. C. Horton Furniture company.

It will mark the completion of 30 years in which Horton has distributed Wedgewood stoves in Santa Ana. Incidentally the Wedgewood stove, furnished by Horton, will be used in all the classes during the three days of the school.

The cooking school this year is expected to be the largest ever held in Santa Ana. Miss Louise Lane, home economist, will be in charge at all school sessions.

The Register, Horton, Alpha Beta and Orange County markets are sponsoring the cooking school. Classes will be held daily from 10 a. m. to 12 noon.

Coinciding with the Horton anniversary will be that of the James Graham Manufacturing company, makers of the Wedgewood stove completing 51 years of making this stove.

The Wedgewood factory is under the NRA and Horton declares that during the last 60 days 200 additional experienced workers have been employed at the plant and despite this fact the company has been forced to accept orders for future delivery.

Horton said today that sales of stoves during August equaled in volume the entire preceding months of the year and from all indications the demand will continue.

The new models shipped from the Newark factory to be presented at the Cooking school, include many late features found in no other stoves, according to Horton. These include the new Grayson electric automatic clock, limousine type fittings, all steel welded frame construction. Additional features include: special Wedgewood insulation for ovens, closed top with porcelain finish, double pan broilers, new type oven heat control, instantaneous flame lighter which dispenses with matches and a highly refined design which eliminates all inaccessible corners and completely dispenses with exposed gas valves and manifolds.

In addition to Wedgewood stoves, J. C. Horton will supply Kolvinator refrigeration.

The Alpha Beta stores and the Orange County market will supply all food materials used in the cooking of the various dishes Miss Louise Lane will demonstrate. All meats also will be furnished by these stores, in addition to several baskets of food that will be given away each day.

Murder at Bridge

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Special Investigator Dundee believes that Juanita Selim and Dexter Sprague were both murdered because they were partners in a blackmail scheme, while the police theory is that they were killed to avenge "Swallowtail Sammie" Savelli, whom they are supposed to have betrayed.

Of Dundee's six possible suspects his case is strongest against Flora Nita. He thinks it possible she killed Nita, thinking Nita had told her husband of some scandal involving her, and that Tracy Miles killed Sprague to protect his wife from a charge of murder. He learns that Flora rushed "Princess Wallflower," was very flattered.

In New York, Dundee finds that the dress in which Nita was cremated and which he thinks is a wedding dress, was bought in January, 1918. At the Forsythe School where the women involved attended and where Nita was director of the Easter play, he learns that Flora left school and became a chorus girl in 1919, and that the rumor was that she had been living with an actor.

Her parents brought her back, and the story was hushed up. He learns that Serena Hart, Forsythe, a successful stage star, recommended Nita for the job. She tells him that she met Nita, who was very kind to her, in the season of 1917-18, and that Nita was married and deserted before the show was over.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIII

"No, I never met Nita's husband," Serena Hart replied. "As a matter of fact, she told me extraordinarily little about him, and did not discuss her marriage with the other girls of the chorus at all. I got the impression that Mr. Selim—Mat, she called him—wanted, it kept secret for a while, but I don't know why. This was early in 1918, as I've told you, though I have no way of fixing even the approximate date, and New York was full of soldiers. I remember I jumped to the conclusion that Nita had succumbed to a war romance, but I don't think she said anything to confirm my suspicion."

"When did she tell you of her marriage—that is, when—in relation to the date of the wedding itself?" Dundee asked.

"The very day she was married," Serena Hart answered. "She was late for the matinee. Our dressing tables were side by side, and as she slipped out of her dress—"

"This dress?" Dundee asked, and handed her the photograph of dead Nita in the royal blue velvet dress she had kept for 12 years.

"Yes," and Serena Hart shuddered. "Her hair was dressed like that, too, although she had been wearing it in long curls, and had to take it down before she could go on for the opening number. She whispered to me that she had been married that day, that she was terribly happy, very much in love, and that her husband had asked her to dress her hair in the French roll, a favorite hair-dress with him. Between numbers she whispered to me again, telling me that her husband was 'so, different,' 'such a lamb'—totally unlike any man she had met on Broadway, poor child. For she was a child still—only 20, but she had been in the show business since she was a motherless, fatherless little drifter of 15....

"No, she did not tell me how old he was, where he came from, his business, or what he looked like and I did not inquire. As the days passed—weeks, probably—she became more and more silent and reserved, though once or twice she protested she was still terribly happy. Then came a day when she did not show up for the performance at all. The next night she told me that her husband had left her, after a quarrel, and had not returned. It seemed that she had innocently told him how she had vamped Benny Steinfield, the big revue producer, you know, into giving her a 'spot' in his summer show, and that her 'Mat' had flown into a rage, accusing her of having been untrue to him. She never mentioned his desertion to me again, but—"

"Yes!" Dundee prompted.

"Well," Serena Hart went on, uncomfortably, "I'm afraid I rather forgot poor Nita after 'Teasing Tilly' closed, for my next work was in stock in Des Moines. After a year of stock I got my chance in a legitimate show on Broadway, and one day I met her on the street. Not having much to talk with her about, I asked her if she and her husband were reconciled. She said no, that she had never seen him again. Then, in a burst of confidence, she told me that she had hired a private detective out of her meager earnings to investigate him in his home town, or rather the city that he had told her he came from. The detective had reported that no such person as Mat or Matthew Selim had ever lived there, so far as he could find out. I asked her if she was going to get

HOME COMING Bank Accounts

A SIGN of improving conditions is the bank accounts which are steadily coming "back home" to Security-First National.

Some are savings accounts, which proved a rock of rescue for their owners. Now, with wages coming in again, their owners are renewing the habit of systematic savings.

Some are accounts which the owners withdrew. These are returning to the safety and certainty and efficient service which their owners remember at Security-First National.

"MONEY IN BANK" in this Bank means money which has come back to the work of upbuilding business and industry in this territory.

Musical Tea Offers Pleasant Hour to Philatheans

Decked with giant display zinnias in a wide variety of color shades, the home of Dr. and Mrs. K. H. Sutherland was setting Saturday afternoon for a musical tea complimentary members of the Philathean club of First Presbyterian church.

Mrs. J. R. P. Nicoll, chairman, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Dale Griggs, Mrs. Ray Jewell, Mrs. C. E. Stockton, Mrs. R. Milner and Mrs. N. Westenkuebler formed the hostess group receiving the guests and responsible for the pleasant entertainment provided.

Piano numbers played by Mrs. Nicoll included a selection from Liszt's "Rigoletto" and "Spirites of the Glen" by Dennee. Miss Janet Raitt continued the program with a group of character sketches, "The Debuts at Bridge," "A Pleasant Hour on the Beach" and "Cariotta." Miss Florine Pollock concluded the musicals with three solos, "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," "The Lass With a Delicate Air" and "The Clock." Her mother, Mrs. Harold K. Pollock, was her accompanist.

Nearly half a hundred guests were present to enjoy the varied features of the afternoon, climaxed with the tea hour. A charmingly appointed table had tiny baby zinnias as its floral motif. Mrs. A. V. Gray presided at the tea while Mrs. James Anderson poured coffee.

English-Breckenridge Nuptials Occur in Autumn Setting

A home wedding, with its infinite possibilities for decorations and its air of intimacy, was the choice of Miss Ruth Breckenridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Breckenridge of South Birch street, when she became the bride Saturday afternoon. Gerald English, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred English of King street.

Sentiment dictated the choice of date, for it was on September 30, 1896 that the bride's parents spoke their wedding vows. Saturday's ceremony at 4:30 o'clock, took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. McFadden, 2121 Greenleaf street, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

Marigolds mingled their sunny hues with the bronze and copper shades of zinnias in decorating the rites, and were especially effective in a solid mass of color banking the fireplace at one end of the long living room where the services were read to the light of many candles.

Miss Mary Rood of Los Angeles, a college friend of Miss Breckenridge, sang "At Dawning" with Miss Arline Birchard as accompanist. Miss Birchard continued into the Wedding March from Lohengrin for the entry of the bride party.

In Bridal Party
Miss Breckenridge wore triple sheer crepe modeled on simple princess lines, in a soft ivory tone very becoming to her brunet loveliness. Her long tulle veil fell from a lace cap where it was caught with real orange blossoms. The exquisite roses of her bridal bouquet were in ivory shading to hearts of pale apricot.

Mrs. Francis Harvey as honor matron, and the two junior bridesmaids, the Little Misses Janet and Barbara McFadden, stressed the autumnal motif in their costumes. Mrs. Harvey wore a modish yellow taffeta suit with brown cloche hat and dress accessories in brown and carried a sheaf of immense golden chrysanthemums. The two junior bridesmaids wore very bouffant frocks in apricot taffeta, and carried demurely formal bouquets of pom-pom chrysanthemums in bronze shades.

Master Breckenridge Strochein, son of the William Strochein of Alhambra, served as ring bearer, and the bride party was completed by Harold English, cousin of the bridegroom, as his best man.

Miss Breckenridge descended the stairs to be met by her father and move to the altar where he gave her in marriage at the service read by the Rev. W. H. McPeak D. D., former pastor of United Presbyterian church. Dr. McPeak has presided at several weddings and five christenings in the Breckenridge family.

Musical Interlude
Miss Rood sang Schubert's "Serenade" during the reception hour, and Miss Birchard played a succession of love songs. In the foreground, candle-lighting dining room where Mrs. Harold Dale poured coffee, a bevy of other close friends served the variety of cakes and ice cream roll centered with wedding bells. In the group were Mrs. James Musick, Mrs. Glen Oaks, Miss Martha Spaulding, Miss Lena Brown, Miss Grace Anderson, Mrs. Jack Patnor, Mrs. Frederick Elliott assisted Mrs. McFadden and Mrs. Breckenridge in various hostess duties, while Mrs. Paul Ragan had assumed direction of the beautiful decorations.

Prominent on the buffet were two bride's cakes, one complementing the new Mrs. English, and its twin confection for her mother, Mrs. Breckenridge, a bride 27 years ago. Mrs. Breckenridge herself had baked the fruit cake served with the menu.

When Mr. and Mrs. English left later for a motor trip to the Yosemite and points in the north, the bride wore a smart black swan dress with white satin blouse. After mid-October they will be at home to their friends at the ranch home on English street where Mr. English just completed extensive remodeling operations.

Present were Mesdames Nell D. Winslow, C. H. Leamer, Florence Hicks, J. A. Ranney, Carry Haines, W. D. Barker, Ella Etchison, Robert White and the hostess, Mrs. Smith.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM
Breakfast

- 1 large orange, sliced, or
- 1 small glass of orange juice
- 2 thin slices rye bread, well
- toasted and spread with
- 1 tsp. butter
- 1 cup coffee with
- 1 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.

Calory total, 320.

If love of sugar is so ingrained in a young child that its non-use spoils the meal, saccharine may be used: one tiny tablet will make a cup of coffee as sweet as 2 lumps of sugar. Many cooked fruits barred on diet menus because of the sugar requirements, may be used if saccharine is substituted for sugar. This is especially true of baked apples or lemons.

Saccharine has absolutely no food value.

A Fascinating Game For Tiny Folk

All summer long the small folk in your family have had their fill of play and the happy companionship found in brothers or sisters slightly older. With gloomy fall days comes real gloom for these little ones. . . . their beloved playmates are off to school. . . . the weather isn't all it ought to be. . . . and fun just seems to have taken wings along with the summer birds. Bring them into the kitchen: let them have their own low table and little dishes and a bit of cookie dough or pastry to do with as they will. Supervise their efforts just a little and you'll be amazed what culinary talents will show up. Children have far more creative intelligence than we give them credit for: in their play with other children, they live in a world of their own, learn to give and take and be "real people" in their small world. You can give them this same feeling of doing things in your kitchen, and best of all, you keep them happy and mentally alive and healthy. I am sure that interest in the child's play at the age of four or five would do a lot to straighten out the adult unhappiness of this old world.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Minc'd Ham Hot Cakes

- 2 cups soft crumbs from center of loaf
- 1 cup boiling milk
- 2 tbsps. bacon fat or melted butter
- 1 cup ground ham, cooked
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 whites beaten to a froth
- Salt and pepper and a dash of sugar.

This is a good way to use up scraps of cooked ham. Run the scraps through the grinder and combine with the crumbs and hot milk, stir well and leave for a few minutes to cool, then add the beaten yolks, melted fat, salt, sugar and pepper. Beat hard for a minute, fold in the frothed whites and bake on a hot griddle, making the cakes small ones.

Serve with melted butter, syrup, or orange marmalade.

Three little cakes have a calory value of 200, chiefly energy makers.

Announcement Made Of Approaching Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Marsh of Villa Park, pioneer residents of this community, are making formal announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Marsh, to Henry W. Schmidt of El Monte. November has been set as the marriage month for the young people, who plan to establish residence in El Monte, where Mr. Schmidt is engaged in ranching.

Miss Marsh, a graduate of Tustin Union High school and of Santa Ana Business college, has an especially interesting background. Her mother, the former Miss Emma Steffens, came here at the age of four years with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Steffens from their fatherland, Hanover, Germany. Since that time, the Steffens have become prominent ranchers of this community, and are living in a hospitable ranch home on Tustin avenue.

Mr. Marsh, too is well known here, having grown to manhood at Villa Park, his native community.

Mr. Schmidt, Miss Marsh's fiancé, has lived in California for eight years, coming to the United States from Germany, where he was born. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt of Germany.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

"Oh, gee, look at that pony go. It's like a dog and pony show," cried Doty, as the frisky pony scampered here and there.

"I'll bet the hound is filled with fright. He sure knows how to hang on tight. 'Twas mean of us, I think, to give the poor dog such a scare."

The funny parrot then cried, "Say! To both of them it's just like play. They've really been with circuses. That's why they are so good."

"I'll make them do an act or two. I know it will please all of you." "Oh, goody, goody," Goldy said. "I wish you really could."

The parrot shouted, "Hey, come here! There's not a thing you two need fear. Please do your little jumping act. 'Twill please the Tinymites."

"If it's done nice, they all will clap and give you each a friendly slap. You see, they came to Pet Land just to see some thrilling sights."

Down jumped the dog, right to the ground. The pony then ran 'round and 'round until the parrot shouted, "All right, hound, get set to jump!"

"Leap in the air with all your might and make real sure you do it right." The dog then leaped up on the pony, landing with a thump.

"Ah, that was fine," yelled Duncy. "I think I can do it, too. I'll try!" But Doty grabbed him by the arm and shouted, "Mercy, no! 'Perhaps you think 'twould be a thrill, but you would take an awful spill. Stay here and watch. The dog and pony will put on this show."

Just then the pony raced by and all the bunch heard Goldy cry, "He's heading for that little stream and planning something rash."

And, sure enough, her hunch was right. The pony jumped with all his might and both he and the hound lit in the stream with quite a splash.

CAL-BADEN TO PRESENT NEW REG FEATURE

A new program and a new time for the Cal-Baden presentation is announced for tonight over KRFG. "Beautiful, Lasting Melodies" is the title and the new time is at 8:30 p. m. daily except Sunday.

These programs will present salon music and classics by the master-composers and played by the world's greatest musicians. They will not compromise the "heavier" classics exclusively, but will include lighter favorites songs and ballads, known and loved by everyone.

Two of the outstanding offerings on tonight's program are the "Venusberg Music" from Tannhauser, by Wagner, and selections from Samson et Delilah, by Saint-Saens. The former will be played by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and is one of Wagner's masterpieces, portraying, in music, the extremes of human passions.

The latter selection will include the familiar melodies "Spring Flowers," "Dalliance Song of Spring," "Love, Thy Aid," the great aria "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" and "Bacchanale" from the last act of the Biblical opera, "Bacchanale" depicts the scene in the interior of the Temple of Dion and the score calls for a very large orchestra. Excellent effects of the oboe, English horn, clarinet, violoncello and other instruments may be noted.

U. S. CITIZENS KILLED DURING GRAVE BATTLE HERE TUESDAY

American officials had left the National hotel last night, when they were warned of an impending attack on the building where several hundred officers, loyal to the De Crespigny regime, had been beleaguered since Sept. 5.

Lotsch was standing on the eleventh floor terrace when a stray bullet struck him. His body was taken from a spreading pool of blood.

At the emergency hospital, where casualties were rushed as the men fell in the street, the records at 8:30 a. m. showed 11 wounded and one dead, all soldiers.

The killing of an American swept through the city and brought rumors that the U. S. Marines would be landed. The United Press learned authoritatively, however, that no preparations were being made since there were "no indications that any Americans had been killed intentionally."

The attack square was ringed around with an impressive display of military force, and reinforcements to the troops were being brought up through the main streets.

Out in the gulf the government's little gunboat Patria, has swung into position. It was capable of pouring shells from its two 10-inch guns into the building at close range.

A light drizzle during the early fighting gave way to clear weather. Ambulances roared through the streets and into the danger zone to remove the wounded. Despite the danger and the lines of soldiery making every effort to localize the conflict, thousands of citizens pressed close to the battle ground and swarmed to every available vantage point to watch the siege.

THE PRESIDENT ADDRESSES AMERICAN LEGION

The President, at Chicago, addressed the American Legion convention. Whether we agree with the President or not, we must express admiration for his frankness and courage. We believe the President expressed not only the opinions of the vast percentage of the American people outside the American Legion but a majority of opinion inside the ranks of the ex-service men as well. The President emphasized that it is the business of society to care for the needy and distressed, that there was a special obligation upon the state to make particular provision for those who were injured or rendered helpless at the time they had dropped all private affairs and were devoting themselves exclusively to the service of the state. But, urges the President, while this is true, when that service is ended those who were so used become a part of the great body of our citizens and the treatment of their ills which come about through no connection with the army should be treated in the same manner as the same ills of all the rest of our citizens. If this is not true, then any legislation helping them would be special legislation in which those who were in the same condition and due to the same causes as the ex-veteran would have to contribute to his help without receiving his fair portion of aid. In this the President is absolutely right.

Disability due to government service should be specifically taken care of by the same ill forces as put all the rest of us in unfortunate condition should be treated in the same manner for all of the people.

We are confident from discussing this with many leaders of the American Legion that they feel that this is the only wise course to take. It is the only wise course for any groups to take. The difficulties which we are confronting, due to our peculiar economic and industrial life, and the depression which has stricken all of us, should be met as a united people without any special privileges granted to any but help granted to all as it is needed and a program worked out whereby all who are in need shall receive the strength and help which comes from organized society to the extent that it is necessary and just.

We are confident, with this statement of fact, that there are many thousands of cases where ex-service men were denied assistance in which cases their disability was connected with the service but difficult or impossible to prove. The benefit of the doubt should be construed in favor of the individual and in so many cases it was not. This we believe is being corrected. While a democracy is not noted for its justice to those who have served it, we believe that public opinion will not only sustain the President in carrying out this idea, but will actually insist that he does it.

While the President emphasized the reasons for his taking the position was to sustain the credit of the government, yet his philosophy was sound and his decisions justified even though the credit of the government had not been involved.

IS MAYOR SHAW CONFUSED?

Mayor Shaw of Los Angeles declares in a very oracular manner how he is going to protect the city against the "reds." And in emphasizing those whom the Red Squad will arrest he says that any one who endeavors to hold a meeting for the "intimidation or coercion of public officials" will be promptly arrested and put in jail. We would take it from his statement that the "reds" are the people who disagree with Mayor Shaw or whom Mayor Shaw disagrees with.

It is interesting to note the slant that some of our politicians have on the question of enemies of the nation. They seem to think that the enemies of the nation are the ones who would criticize public officials for some other action. And how wrought up and excited they can get in bludgeoning the man whose opposition to their regime they are glad to confound with "public enemies!"

The political bosses in Los Angeles county don't hold public meetings. Their meetings are private. When they talk to a public official the public official knows he has been talked to. Intimidation and coercion is their stock in trade. The only method that the average man has of using influence on public officials to correct any wrong or injustice is through public speech, when they are exercising the right of assembly and the right of free speech. When these are headed off, it is done in the interest of the political bosses and of special interests who have no trouble in private meeting behind closed doors, using their vast power through the medium of intimidation and coercion, if not purchase, to get their desires. The buying and selling of public office and public trust; special contracts to ship-owners to the extent of sixty-six thousand dollars per pound of mail transported across the Atlantic; special leases for oil preserves; contracts that take more money out of people's pockets than the lower and legitimate bidder would take; henchmen put on the payroll of the taxpayers without returning adequate service—these never come through public meetings, or free speech or the right of assembly. They come in the little private gatherings of which the public know nothing until later exposed to an investigation. My! How mad these officers can get at these public meetings that they do not control! "Of course the public meetings are against the government," say these officials, "aren't we the government?"

We do not know whether Mayor Shaw is deceived or is deceiving, but we would remind him that liberty and rights are not invaded or destroyed by giving the people an opportunity to talk over either real or imaginary wrongs. If they are imaginary, light can be thrown upon the facts and it can be shown that they are imaginary. If they are real, the bringing them to the surface insures their correction and their correction spells good government and protects us from upheaval.

PEERAGE DEFENDS THE HORSE

The Duke of Devonshire made a little speech at a horse show in Derbyshire the other day. He expressed himself freely regarding modern inventions. Chiefly he attacked the automobile. He called automobiles "foul, stinking things" and "horrible brutes making life hideous." "When I first knew this horse show," he said scathingly, "we came here as gentlemen, and not as crashing cads."

In the face of such opposition to new things, the people have reason to weigh signs of progress and know, before they adopt them whether they are really constructive improvements. But the value of this is that we have often wondered why they had a nobility in England, or why they kept it. If this opinion expressed by the Duke of Devonshire is the mind of all of those of the class, they are worth while because our love for the horse made us feel just that way about the automobile until the noble-spirited animal was driven from the road to the pasture for superannuated animals. The preservation of the love of the noble horse is worth while, though possibly a little expensive at that to keep up, if it means the support of the peerage.

H. G. WELLS PREDICTS THE FUTURE

H. G. Wells, in a recent writing, dips into the future of the world; and it is not an alluring outlook. The one bright spot is that the disasters of fifty years will eventuate in a genuine World State such as the idealists of the ages have dreamed about.

But just note what we have to pass through before we reach that glorious consummation: 1940, another World war; 1945, an era of crime; 1950, relaxation of the British Empire; 1955, the raid of the germs; 1960, the disruption of the American Republic; 1968, great landslip in the British isles; 1990, emergence of a genuine "World State."

We must confess that the world is heading toward some of these undesirable events. Man has not learned very much from the experience of the past. Yet we are creatures of hope, and these are corrective forces at work. And this should be added: most of us will have departed from the scene when the worst of these disasters are predicted to take place. Yet there is something to think about in what Mr. Wells predicts.

A Plain Man's Business Creed

"I like folks more'n I like money, and . . . I get my pleasure out of life in giving folks good service at a low rate." So declared Mr. M. C. York, plain-spoken mountaineer of Georgia, who supplies telephone service to neighbor-farmers at rates as low as 5¢ cents, and who was in Atlanta to protest against being forced to change his rates.

What a refreshingly simple philosophy of sound business practice and, withal, what a wholesome recipe for happy living! Mr. York has the clear vision of the mountaineer. The "deceitfulness of riches" does not deceive him. He will have none of them. "You couldn't give me an increase of rates if you put it on the Christmas tree," he declared emphatically.

Why, one may ask, has it so generally been assumed that the natural aim of the business man is to make the largest possible profits in the shortest possible time? So general has this view become that to some extent it has invaded even the professions, and we find a well-known college professor, in a book intended for students entering newspaper work, accepting the contention that, in a capitalistic society, the profit aim is the motive power of journalism. All this, though teachers and philosophers all down the ages have cried from the house-tops that the pursuit of riches can never bring happiness; and though history and the experiences of life, when seen in adequate perspective, so reinforce this lesson that it would appear a sort of madness to believe otherwise.

People are learning many things from economic stress. In time they may even come to learn the why of such stress. Certainly nothing could be more disheartening in immediate effect or ultimate result than the general acceptance by society at large of slogans and ambitions that can never lead to happiness and satisfaction.

Actually, too, Mr. York's philosophy is not only more Christian and humane, it is more sane and realistic than that of the ordinary business man. As Bishop Fiske says, writing in the Atlantic Monthly of Christianity and today's problems:

In statecraft (and even in every-day politics) we have been discovering that the conception of society as made up of individuals each free to serve his own ends, while the devil takes the hindmost, is as faulty from the point of view of economic realism as Christianity has always told us that it is from the point of view of spiritual idealism.

Mr. York's blunt challenge to the accepted business ideal is as a beacon in today's still foggy weather. "When my folks are having trouble a feller can't stand out above the crowd and expect to make a lot of money, not if he's a-thinking right," he declares. No, "a feller can't"—nor does he want to "if he's a-thinking right."

AFTER LOOKING AT AN ATLAS

I never have been to Nairobi,
Nor gazed on the desert of Gobi;
Peru is a land
Which I never have scanned
From a motor, a ship or a plane.
I have still to look out of a doorway
Which gave on the mountains of Norway;
I haven't, as yet,
Had a glance at Tibet,
Or witnessed a bullfight in Spain.

I don't know what fauna or flora
Is found in the land of Andorra;
I never have trod
The dark, jungle-clad shore
That clothes Abyssinia's shore.
And though I'm convinced that the Moro
Doesn't dwell in the Rio de Oro
I am not very sure
That the land of the Moor
Isn't somewhere southwest of Lahore.

However, I'm certain that Sweden
Is many long miles north of Eden;
Kamerun, I'll maintain,
One would look for in vain
From the church built by Christopher Wren.
But over the sphere I have hurried
And I'm getting a little bit worried
Lest some land I have missed
While compiling my list,
And I'll get them all scrambled again.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

RECOVERY OR READJUSTMENT

I note an increasing tendency to subtle skepticism respecting the NRA as an instrument of economic recovery and an increasing tendency to list it rather as an agency of social readjustment. Voices here and there are beginning to say the NRA is something that should have been put into effect before the depression when the tide of profits was running full or postponed until after the depression when profits begin again to pile up.

Here are some of the observations I am hearing more and more frequently:

(1) That the NRA asks industry to throw a greater share of profits to labor at a time when there are no profits to divide.

(2) That the NRA, by increasing the operating costs of industry at this time, is hindering rather than hastening the return of profits and prosperity.

(3) That the NRA is making wage and hour demands which only the most powerful industries with extensive reserves can meet.

(4) That the NRA is making demands upon small enterprises that they simply cannot meet; and that these small enterprises must either evade the NRA demands or shut up shop.

(5) That the NRA is making the securities of many otherwise sound industries less attractive to investors because it is forcing them to invest a lot of money in higher wages and shorter hours from which they cannot realize profit for some time to come, and that this is making their financial statements less confidence-inspiring.

The upshot of such observations is, as I have said, an increasing tendency to call the NRA a desirable social policy that should be put into effect when prosperity is with us, but not a workable economy policy to pull us out of depression.

How much truth is in these observations? I shall try to answer this question tomorrow.

THE NOISY CHILD

A little noise is acceptable to most people of ordinary good health. Eternal quiet would be more devastating than the daily racket we have become accustomed to hear about us. But noise has its limits. Toward the end of the day nerves are frayed and endurance is strained. At that hour a noisy child in the house is unbearable.

"Stop that shouting. Nobody here is hard of hearing. Speak inside the house. I'm sure you can be heard down at the railroad."

The child pauses, looks at though he felt a sudden check upon his energy, draws a breath and proceeds to bombard one's ears with greater enthusiasm than before. Forthwith he is banished with harsh words.

Little children often talk too loudly. In their eager desire to catch and hold attention they increase the volume of tone. The less attention that is paid them the louder they speak until one is forced to protest. That fault is easily corrected by giving the child an immediate hearing, and cautioning him, in low tones, to speak softly to your ears. Loud tones escape listening ears. He will lower his voice to your level at once. Practice will make this a habit.

The older child who shouts at his playmates, his family, his teachers, is usually trying to raise himself in the estimation of his group. In his desperation he tries lifting his voice over all others hoping in that way to dominate where before he was submerged.

Don't waste time and energy in telling such a child to tone his voice down. He won't be able to hear you until his necessity has been served. He needs to hold his place among his fellows and until he finds a better way the loud voice must serve. Help him to find a way of succeeding and the voice will soon find its proper level. Not without a few hints, of course, and some practice but you can feel assured that he will speak in normal tones once he has succeeded in shining.

Sometimes a shy child takes refuge behind a big voice. One of the shyest children I ever met used to shout his answers to the teacher so he could be heard down the length of a fifty foot corridor through closed oak doors. When we managed to get his shyness under control the shouting ceased.

Some children move noisily. They tramp, they drag chairs about, they knock things down. "Clumsy," somebody says, and they are as once noisier than before. "Doing it just on purpose," a weary nerve worn teacher rasps at him, with the same result.

Clumsy, and therefore noisy children are those whose coordination is poor. Say nothing about their noise and their clumsiness. Find a way of training them to deftness, to light and accurate movements, train them to use their bodies with grace and ease, and the rest comes as a matter of course. And this is gravely important, some children cannot hear the noise they make. If you have a noisy child who does not respond to suggestion and training, test his hearing. Deaf children, hard of hearing children, are often noisy.
